

Back to School: Book Covering

It's that time of year again, when you have to start thinking about going back to school. It may seem like a bad thing, but you can easily bring ponies with you into school! A way I do this is cover my books with horse things. Here's a few of my best methods.

1. POSTER COVERING

For years and years, I used old posters from magazines to cover my books. It was a simple and effective way of covering your books. All you need is some A4 posters, books, glue stick and some clear book covering. Simply glue the poster onto the book, and cover with clear book covering.

2. PHOTO COVERING

My next method is just as easy, but can be more personalised. All you need to do this, is 5 or 6 photos of your choice, glue stick and clear book covering. To do this, organise your photos so they fit squarely on an A4 sheet of paper, before gluing them to your book. Cover with book covering.

3. MICRO PHOTO COVERING

This is one of my later ideas, and looks super cool once you're done. All you need to do is get lots of photos and shrink them down so they're 1-2cm long. Organise your pics on an A4 sheet of paper, overlapping and at angles if you wish, before gluing and covering them onto your book

4. COLLAGE CUT-OUTS

My most stylish idea yet, this is what I'm doing on my books this year. This one is a little more complicated. Make a collage of tiny pics on an A4 sheet of paper (or A3 if you have lots of books to do). Print out a few horse silhouettes, or horse outlines from online. Trace these outlines onto the back of your collage, and cut them out. You should now have a pretty horse made out of horses! Make as many as you need, and glue them to your books before covering.

TOP TIP: For a removeable cover (great for binders) , instead of gluing them onto your books, place them on a sticky-side-up sheet of clear book covering, and cover with another piece of covering. Make the bottom sheet bigger than the top, so you can wrap the excess sticky part around your book/binder. When you need to take off the cover, simple peel off the sticky part around the side of the book/binder, and use again. (this works better with binders as they are less papery)
